

Informal Talks At Conference

Subjects are Military, Rather Than Political, Secretary States

By W. L. Beale, Jr.

QUEBEC, Sept. 12.—(P)—President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill conferred today, summoned their military staffs for an afternoon session and again officially emphasized that their meeting was primarily "military" and concerned with the Pacific war against Japan.

Stephen Early, presidential secretary, and Robert Cruikshank of British Information Services, brought to a pre-new press conference word of the day's schedule.

Early opened his remarks by saying that the president "is most pleased with the press of yesterday, on the basis of the papers he has seen and a resume from Washington, that have emphasized the military sense of the conference and the Pacific theater."

Early said that this afternoon's session with the military commanders "was getting down to the real business of the conference."

At the same time, both Early and Cruikshank stressed the informality of personal talks between the president and Churchill, and how each was available to the other at any time.

"Would it be accurate to imply that, meeting alone, they are talking over some of the broader political aspects . . . ?" a reporter started to ask.

Party Leaders Are Meeting In St. Louis

Both Parties Form Organization, Draft Platforms

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 12.—(P)—Missouri Republicans and Democrats shouted charges of "bossism" at each other across the capitol rotunda today as they organized and drafted platforms for a nation-wide campaign which starts out as one of the hottest this politically-divided state has seen in decades.

Jean Paul Bradshaw, keynoting the Republican platform convention, called the Democratic ticket "a resurrection of the Pendleton machine."

Maurice Hoffman, simultaneously keynoting Democrats in the opposite wing of the capitol, called the GOP nominees "stooges" of National Committeeman Bark T. Mattingly's "machine."

Speakers of both parties confidently predicted victory in November, with Gov. Forrest C. Donnell declaring the voters are "increasingly aroused to the need for a change" in presidents while Hoffman insisted they "are in no mood to take chances" by replacing President Roosevelt with Thomas E. Dewey.

Tranquil Meetings
With party leaders driving for harmony after bitter primary fights, the battling was all between—instead of inside—the parties in unusually tranquil meetings.

Pre-arranged organization plans went through without a hitch.

Sam W. Wear, Springfield lawyer, was elected without opposition as chairman of the Democratic state committee to succeed Walter G. Stilwell of Hannibal, now in naval service. Grover W. Dalton of Poplar Bluff was re-elected by acclamation as Republican chairman.

Both were seated weeks ago by the party candidates and the committees wasted no time stamp-

Clarence H. Keele Seriously Wounded

Pvt. Clarence H. Keele was seriously wounded in action in France August 31, according to a message received about 10 o'clock Monday night by his wife, Mrs. Anna Keele, 714 North Grand avenue. Pvt. Keele has been overseas since April.

The last letter received from him was dated August 17 and arrived August 29.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Keele, reside at 1904 South Prospect avenue, and have another son, Lawrence E. Keele, of the navy, who is on submarine duty somewhere in the South Pacific area.

The American armadas cut into Germany while many hundreds of other planes pummeled the foe close to the western battle fronts. They destroyed 45 planes in aerial combat and another 25 on the ground. American losses were not immediately announced.

Another force of 500 or so American heavy bombers from Italy attacked the Wasserberg factory at Ulm where the Nazis were building new and secret jet-propelled Messerschmitt-262 planes. They also bombed an airfield at Lechfeld where many of these aircraft have been seen.

In three days, American planes alone and only those striking from the west have destroyed 398 German planes, 175 of them yesterday by Eighth Air Force fighters and bombers.

See Germans In Retreat

American medium and dive bombers operating from both Britain and France hit into Germany, bombing in and behind the Siegfried line in advance of Lt. Courtney Hodges' spearheads.

The pilots reported the roads west of the line crowded with German military traffic in retreat.

In clear weather, the bombers struck visually at these objectives:

Synthetic oil plants at Ruhland, northeast of Dresden; Boalen, near Leipzig; Magdeburg and at Brux on the Czech border.

Refineries at Hammington near Heide and at Misburg near Hannover.

An engine plant near Kiel.

An ordnance depot at Friedland near Magdeburg.

The Germans said yet another American force was hitting south Germany from Italian bases.

The enemy, in desperation, had lit mud smudge pots around some of the refineries to conceal them in smoke palls. Some of the targets were even deeper in eastern and central Germany than those attacked yesterday.

U. S. Planes Land in Russia

Moscow reported scores of U.S. Eighth Air force bombers landed on Russian bases yesterday after bombing Chemnitz, 50 miles southeast of Leipzig.

The German radio filled European air waves with warnings of bombs and fighters approaching from England, France and Italy, declaring in one announcement that 1,300 Allied bombers were nearing western Germany. It was the fifth straight day of heavy air attacks.

Policemen's Ball Thursday

More than 500 tickets have been sold for the annual Sedalia Policeman's ball which is to be held at Convention hall, Liberty park, Thursday night from 9 o'clock until 2:00. The police are confident their ticket sale will reach more than 600 by the night of the affair.

The large Sedalia Army Air Field dance band has been obtained to furnish the music for the dancing along with a soloist who will sing various songs. During the dancing announcements regarding War Bond sales will also be given.

While the local police enjoy themselves for one night, the Pettis County Post No. 16, American Legion, Auxiliary Police, will take over the law enforcement of the city, as they have done the past three years.

Funds obtained through the annual ball will be used by the officers to purchase for themselves new winter coats and necessary equipment, not furnished by the city of Sedalia.

A group of police officers from Jefferson City have notified the Sedalia police they hope to come here to attend the affair.

Dewey Is Not Informed, States Hillman

Declares GOP Nominee Has no Past Record

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 12.—(P)—Sidney Hillman, director of the CIO political action committee, declared today, "It is deplorable than in this most crucial of all years in American history the Republican party has chosen to nominate for President Mr. Thomas E. Dewey, a man who has no record on which to stand."

In a press conference preceding an address before the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers convention, Hillman asserted that governor Dewey's record "is one that no working person could possibly support."

Of Governor Dewey's foreign policy, Hillman said:

"In 1940 he was for breaking off relations with Russia. Just think what that would have meant to us in loss of lives if we did not have Russia as an ally. Lately Mr. Dewey has been in favor of some sort of 'cohesion' with Russia, whatever that means."

Opposed Aid To Allies

"Formerly, Mr. Dewey opposed our giving aid to the Allies. Recently he has come out for an alliance with Britain.

Wheat, Oats Move Up

By Willard Robertson
CHICAGO, Sept. 12—(P)—Favorable Washington legislative developments, which traders believed might boost some farm prices, took the play away from the bearish government corn crop forecast today in the grain futures market and wheat and oats moved up a cent or more at times.

Also boosting oats was buying believed to have been short-covering and due partly to reports of higher asking prices for Canadian oats in the cash market. The Canadian grain has been giving the domestic market much competition.

Rye and barley sagged heavily early on the government forecast for a corn crop much higher than expected, rallied somewhat with wheat and oats at times, but were unable to recover their losses.

Barley broke as much as 4½ cents a bushel for a new seasonal low near the close.

Wheat closed ¼ to 1¼ cent higher than the previous finish. September '21.56¢, oats were up ¼ to 1¼ cent. September 57¢, rye was ½ lower. September 95¢, and barley was down 1¼ to 3¾ cents. September $1.01.

It was suggested that plans of business to return to peacetime activities might be more compact than generally known. Investment forces still were notably cautious, though, and inclined to keep commitments light pending confirmation elsewhere of the Maine Republican sweep and developments at the Quebec conferences.

DAILY WASHINGTON nerry-go-round

by Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON, Sept 12—Most important political meeting since the Chicago Democratic convention takes place in Texas today when Texas Democrats meet in Dallas to thrash out the question of whether their electors shall vote for Senator Harry Byrd even though the people of Texas should vote overwhelmingly for Roosevelt.

At this writing, thanks to cooks Roosevelt, Governor Coke Stevenson and Wallace spoiling the broth, it looks as if the Texas electoral situation was more muddled than ever and that a minimum of 15 votes would go to Harry Byrd in the electoral college next November.

In a tight election, this might decide who is to be the next president of the United States.

Latest development in the tumultuous Texas turmoil began when Vice President Wallace dropped in on anti-Roosevelt Governor Coke Stevenson at the governor's mansion at 5:30 this morning last month. Gov. Stevenson wasn't up, but he did get up at 6 a.m., at which time he and Wallace brewed coffee and had a pleasant chat.

Later reporting to FDR, Wallace said that Stevenson had been badly treated in Washington, had been ignored when the president went to the Mexican border and felt badly. He suggested that FDR invite the governor of Texas up to Washington for a chat, and that they might iron out the fact that anti-Roosevelt Democrats, headed by Jesse Jones' nephew, had chosen 23 electors, of which at least fifteen were certain to vote against Roosevelt next November.

Roosevelt-Stevenson Parley
So Governor Stevenson was invited to Washington. Arriving here, he was corralled by Jesse Jones, who conferred with him for an hour, then took him to the White House, introduced him to the president and sat outside the door waiting for the conference to break up.

Inside the president's office, FDR and Stevenson talked about the problem of reconverting Texas war plants, one of which in Austin had closed on the day Coke left Texas. Then they got around to the real subject—Texas politics.

The president had seen an opinion by William Flippin, prominent Texas attorney, that the Dallas convention would have the right to select a new group of Texas electors, ousting the anti-Roosevelt electors chosen in May. The president also knew that his friends in Texas had 710 votes pledged out of the 1350 coming to Dallas and that they were confident they could put the new pro-Roosevelt electors across.

So he suggested to Stevenson that they clean out the old electors and get a new list. But the governor demurred. He argued in favor of a compromise plan whereby two lists of electors would be on the ticket—one list for Roosevelt, one list against him, so the voter could take his choice.

Stevenson talked convincingly, said he had talked things over with Vice President Wallace, that Wallace had invited him to come to Washington, and that he felt confident he could straighten everything out with his compromise if the president would leave things to him.

So the president, faced with this promise from the governor of the state and preoccupied with war problems, he was to discuss with Churchill, argued no more.

Stevenson got the definite impression that the president acquiesced and, when he got back to Texas, so informed his friends. The Stevenson-Wallace compromise of two sets of electors on the ballot was said to have received the White House blessing.

FDR's Friends Aroused

Whereupon Roosevelt's friends in Texas hit the ceiling. Mayor Tom Miller of Austin phoned to Washington, raising Cain. Jimmy Allred, Alvin Wirtz, Speaker Sam Rayburn, together with 17 Texas congressmen out of 21, felt themselves very much out on a limb.

Sam Rayburn tried to phone the president to find out what had happened, but FDR had gone to Hyde Park. The only man who indicated that he knew was Jesse Jones, who had captured Coke Stevenson when he emerged from the White House and had kept him the rest of the day.

THE STORY OF DUCKWORTH

XXVII

THE Allies were now holding one-third of the Italian peninsula, the British advancing up the east coast while the Americans were contesting every foot of the ground up the west coast—both driving along the roads toward Roosevelt.

While burdened with the tremendous responsibilities of these actions, we find General Eisenhower the same strong but genial like in his contacts with his generals and soldiers at the front and his staff back at headquarters. His human qualities never deserted him even in the greatest crises.

General Ike had witnessed the battle of Salerno, arriving there by land, sea, and plane from his African headquarters. He left headquarters in a Flying Fortress and boarded a British ship which took him to Italy. There he went ashore in an American PT boat and then traveled around by jeep.

While with General Clark he found himself under direct fire. A German mortar shell whined over their heads and landed a short distance away. He was again under fire at the battle of Volturino. His men were used to seeing him conferring with their chiefs at advance field headquarters amid the screaming of shells and roar of bursting bombs.

Throughout the Sicilian and Italian campaigns the general never forgot the welfare of his troops and no problem was too small for him. He visited an army show and commanded the actors.

When he heard of a proposed visit of all-star baseball teams he wired, "I not only want those teams but I insist that they stay over for 30 days."

Neither did he lose touch with his family. A letter from home

Jesse said the compromise plan was a "fine plan" and he was for it. This was the only thing Wallace ever originated that Jesse agreed with.

However, Pres. Roosevelt's real friends chewed the air. They pointed out that the Stevenson-Wallace compromise gave the Republicans three big advantages. First, they could initiate legal proceedings to have the pro-Roosevelt electors taken off the ballot, leaving only the anti-Roosevelt men on the ticket. Second, a ballot with three lists of electors—Roosevelt, anti-Roosevelt and Republican—would be so confusing that it would help the Republicans. Third, Republicans, by voting for anti-Roosevelt electors, could definitely win.

So it looks as if Tom Dewey really has made some progress in Texas.

Note—All day when Governor Stevenson was in Washington, a cattle expert at the department of agriculture waited to show him an experiment in crossing Herefords and Jerseys in order to produce a milk breed able to withstand the rough mountain country of West Texas. Vice President Wallace had taken Stevenson seriously when Coke talked to him about this in Austin. But he didn't know the governor. So in Texas they say: "Wallace started the Stevenson trip, but Jesse Jones won it." Coke never even went to see the cattle.

Merry-Go-Round
At the Washington opening of Darryl Zanuck's smash hit, "Wilson," Carmen Miranda was introduced to Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau. Quoth Miranda: "I hate you. You take all my money away." . . . Ex-Congressman Martin Sweeney of Cleveland, strong follower of Gerald L. K. Smith, is busy organizing Dewey-Bricker clubs in Ohio. Some politicos consider this a significant GOP move to garner all the isolationists privately while vigorously kicking them publicly.

Colonel N. B. Briscoe, able commander of Ft. Knox, is not the only one who has made some progress in Texas.

So the president, faced with this promise from the governor of the state and preoccupied with war problems, he was to discuss with Churchill, argued no more.

Stevenson got the definite impression that the president acquiesced and, when he got back to Texas, so informed his friends.

The Stevenson-Wallace compromise of two sets of electors on the ballot was said to have received the White House blessing.

FDR's Friends Aroused

Whereupon Roosevelt's friends in Texas hit the ceiling. Mayor Tom Miller of Austin phoned to Washington, raising Cain.

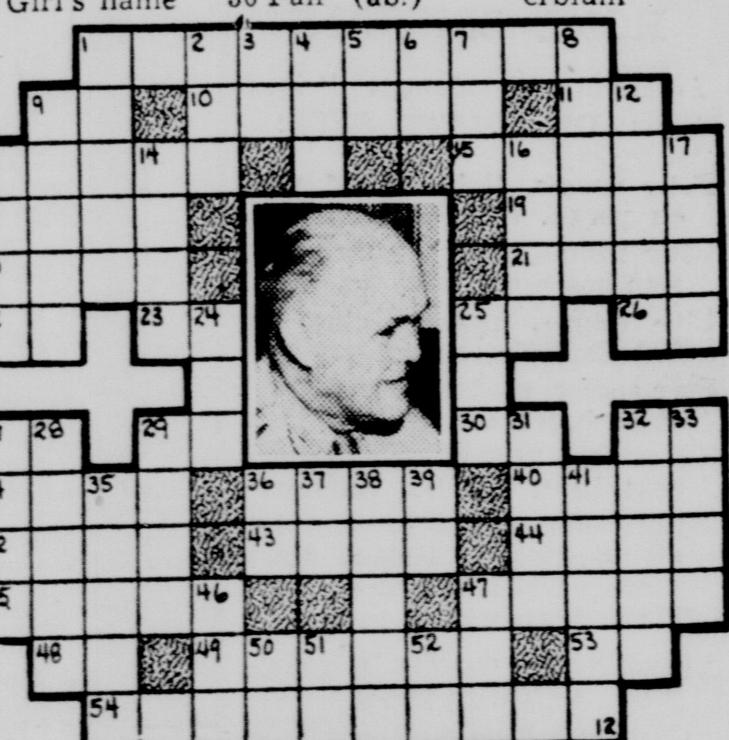

Jimmy Allred, Alvin Wirtz, Speaker Sam Rayburn, together with 17 Texas congressmen out of 21, felt themselves very much out on a limb.

Sam Rayburn tried to phone the president to find out what had happened, but FDR had gone to Hyde Park. The only man who indicated that he knew was Jesse Jones, who had captured Coke Stevenson when he emerged from the White House and had kept him the rest of the day.

"It is learned that the dog, Duckworth, belonged jointly to Lieutenant East and his best friend, Lieutenant Taff. Lieutenant East was killed in action April 4. His plane and grave were located after our forces moved into the Tunis area. The loss of his best friend deeply affected Taff. The commanding officer of the fighter group brought Taff with the dog to the airplane. Taff was heartbroken at the thought of losing his dog, and wanted to spend every possible minute with him until the plane took off. He placed him in the plane and carefully tied him. He left the plane just before the take-off. Colonel West had been waiting in his car to take Taff back to quarters, but Taff was seen to thank him and walk away from the car to an adjoining field.

"Under the circumstances, and in particular in view of the statement that the dog was jointly owned by your son and his best friend, and especially as Taff has shown strong affection for the dog, I believe you will agree with me it would be unwise to return the dog to you as requested.

"The friendship of a dog is precious. It becomes even more so if one is so far removed from home as we are in Africa. I have a Scotty. In him I find consolation and diversion. For me he is the one 'person' to whom I can talk without the conversation turning back to the war. Duckworth is performing a patriotic service. I respect the quality of warm friendship shown by Taff for the dog. I am confident you and Mrs. East will view the situation similarly despite your natural and understandable desire to have with you this close companion of your gallant son who died for his country on the field of battle."

These and many other stories are told about General Ike as the campaign was waged in Italy.

Throughout the autumn days and early winter of 1943, while the Allied Armies were fighting their way toward Rome, against tempests and floods as well as a heavily barricaded and entrenched enemy, Ike never lost his intimate touch with his soldiers.

World Series Cinema First To Servicemen

More Than 3,500,000 Servicemen Saw the 1943 World Series

By Jerry Liska

CHICAGO, Sept. 12—(AP)—Right now it's harder to cast than was "Gone With the Wind," but baseball's super show, the World Series, again will be filmed and shipped overseas to sports-hungry servicemen.

Leo Fonseca, American league promotional director, announced today that a crew of 15 cameramen and technicians will shoot thousands of film feet to capture pictorially the series which opens Oct. 4 at St. Louis.

On completion of the series—and that may occur in St. Louis, New York, Detroit or Boston, depending upon the outcome of the current Roman-candle pennant scrap in the American league—hundreds of prints of a two-reel sound movie will be distributed to the armed forces throughout the world.

Fonseca said filming of the 1943 series, which he described as a smash hit from the moment it was introduced, has been shown to more than 3,500,000 servicemen. There were 500 prints sent to ships at sea, to Iceland, Australia, the European front, the Southwest Pacific and South America. In addition, it has been viewed by 2,000,000 civilian fans.

Servicemen will get the first peek at the 1944 movie, Fonseca said, and explained it won't be ready for civilian distribution until after the first of the year.

He estimated a minimum of 18,000 feet of film and perhaps as many as 25,000 feet will be ground out to pack baseball's annual dramatic climax into a 2,000-foot finished product. The junior circuit again will be joined by A. G. Spalding and Brothers, maker of the official major league baseballs and Hillerich and Bradby Company, bat manufacturers, in sponsorship of the movie. Last year's picture was the first all-World Series movie ever produced.

Fonseca admits Hollywood's hunt for a "Scarlet O'Hara" had nothing on the feuding between the Yankees, Tigers, Browns and Red Sox for the co-starring role with the St. Louis Cardinals in the October classic.

But, Lew grins, it'll still be a swell show for which GI Joes all over the world will have front row seats.

Possibilities of a Two Or Three way Tie In American League

By Jack Hand
Associated Press Sports Writer

Rights—Possibilities of a two or three-way tie for the American league pennant appeared less fantastic today as the four leaders loosed through an early week rest period before moving into the final stretch drive.

With an average of 17 games to play, Detroit had 18, the first place Yankees were only three lengths in front of fourth-place Boston, one game ahead of St. Louis and a half game on top of Detroit.

If a tie should result, the World Series opening date of Oct. 4 might have to be moved back although a single game playoff in the west could be completed in time to open on schedule in St. Louis if only two teams were involved.

Open gaps in the league schedule left only a New York-Philadelphia night game Wednesday hanging before the weekend business starts on Friday but the race can not be decided before the final intersectional series starting next week.

Detroit held a slight edge on Boston in the business of beating their rivals from the opposite geographical half. The Tigers wallop the easterners 44 times in 74 starts for a .595 percentage.

Servicemen will get the first peek at the Red Cross Corner

We are still on the job of recruiting members for our Red Cross Home Nursing classes. They will be taught by registered nurses, and it would seem that all the women of Sedalia would rush to avail themselves of such an opportunity to prepare themselves for the rigours of the coming winter. These classes are open to the public, and are specially streamlined to meet the conditions necessitated by the war. They are instructed with neatness and dispatch, and the most is learned in the shortest time. Why wait any longer? Why not call Red Cross headquarters and enroll now? Call 618 for time, schedule, and further particulars.

We're going to begin and end today's column with the same theme, Home Nursing. We are taking the liberty of quoting from two letters recently received in our office. The first from a member of the Lincoln district, the other from the Hopewell community: "I wish to express my thanks to the Red Cross for the opportunity to attend both the standard and the streamlined course in Home Nursing.
